Results of the National Programme – A Complex System of Conservation in Siberia

Abstract

The Siberian Federal District (SFD), that unites 12 federated states and covers 30 % of the Russian Federation territory, currently contains four regional stock conservation centres which were created and developed with the help of the financial and organizational support of the “National Programme of Conservation of Russian Library Stocks for 2001–2010”. The article explains the benefit of this measure and then stresses what research is needed further on.
